

An Appraisal of the Impact of Companies and Allied Matters Act 2020 on the Nigerian Business Community

Abstract

The uneasy regulatory regime including cost of establishing and managing businesses in the country affects profitability. These government regulations tailored by the Corporate Affairs Commission (CAC) has hampered the production and growth of businesses in Nigeria over the years. Following concerns on the Companies and Allied Matters Act (CAMA) 1990 becoming outdated, the Act was amended with a view to bringing our corporate law up to speed with global trends and thereby encourages investments that will allow small businesses and start up to thrive, lower cost and ease regulatory burden. Based on this premise, the Paper seeks to appraise the impact of CAMA 2020 on the Nigerian business community. The study found among other things, that the administrative proceeding Committee under Section 851 of the new CAMA 2020 has been saddled with the responsibility of adjudicating on matters arising in the Act as provided by Section 38 of the Companies regulation, which negates the principles of fair hearing, as Constitutionally guaranteed. Data generated from the study were analysed using doctrinal and descriptive methods, as well as content analysis. The Paper makes recommendations which includes strict and total compliance with the codes of corporate governance in Nigeria; the imperative of amending the CAMA 2020 in order to return the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal High Court; ensuring transparency and adequate check on the excesses of the corporate organs; and restoration of the pre-registration requirement of the endorsement of the statement of compliance by the legal practitioner; etcetera.

1.1 Background

Economic regulation plays a pivotal role in a competitive and growing economy by providing a stable and predictable regulatory framework to facilitate efficient investment and sustainable growth. This is achieved by building a stable and transparent regulatory environment with a long track record of regulatory decision making. However, piecemeal, ad-hoc, unanticipated and stale changes in law and policymaking are likely to erode investor confidence and increase the cost of doing business in Nigeria.

The Companies and Allied Matters Decree No. 1, 1990 was the first major amendment that nullified the then Companies Act of 1968. Then it became the Companies and Allied Matters Act (CAMA) 2004. However, since CAMA 2004, no major amendment was incorporated to the Companies Act for thirty years. Yet England, the originator of our laws had over the years amended its company laws. The major flaws with the old CAMA were quite significant. There were gaps in doing business in Nigeria. The old CAMA created bottlenecks in the free flow of performing businesses in Nigeria. For example, the cost of registration was high, fillings of incorporation documents required physical appearance at CAC. Furthermore, it took time to get the incorporation certificate. In short, it was quite cumbersome to incorporate a company with the old Act because there were a lot of technicalities involved. Thus, the Act was obsolete and affected the development of the Nigerian corporate world. The Act has been depicted as obstructing current strategic policies in the light of public and worldwide changes. An inadequate or obsolete legal system can hinder efficiency and development and sabotage business growth. It is for this reason that a strong legal structure is key to an enabling business environment. It hence became apparent that the provisions of the CAMA 2004 needed to meet up with international business standards; consequently, it became necessary to make the Act more contemporary and important.

The Nigerian business community is characterized by the activities of small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs) or small and medium sized businesses (SMBs).<sup>1</sup> The SMEs have proven to enhance the economic growth of any country. They are being regulated and managed by a recognized government body known as the Corporate Affairs Commission (CAC).

The Corporate Affairs Commission (CAC) OF Nigeria was established in 1990 vide Companies and Allied Matters Act, 1990 (CAP C20, LFN 2004). It is an autonomous body charged with the responsibility to regulate the formation and management of companies in Nigeria. Section 8 (1) (a), (b), (c), (d), (e) and (f) of CAMA 2020 and Section 7 (1) 1990 CAMA. The role played by businesses in the development of country's economy is very important. Businesses have greatly contributed to the Nigerian development in terms of employment growth and marketing of goods and services.<sup>2</sup>

Despite the role played by businesses in Nigeria in terms of development, there are still some factors militating against their effective and smooth functioning which include government policies, cost of setting up and registering the businesses under the CAC. It is against these backdrops that the National Assembly had passed a bill in 2018 for the amendment or repeal of the CAMA Act 1990. On 7th August 2020, President Muhammadu Buhari assented to the Bill which saw the rebirth of the new CAMA Law 2020.

The repeal and re-enactment of the companies and Allied Matters Act, 1990 (CAP C20, LFN 2004) ('CAMA') as CAMA 2020 ('the Act') is a major game changer in the corporate regulatory landscape. The newly enacted Act introduces measures to ensure efficiency in the registration and regulation of corporate vehicles, reduce the compliance, burden of small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs), enhance transparency and stakeholder's engagement in corporate vehicles and overall, promote a more friendly business climate. The overhaul of the CAMA, which is the foundational legal basis for corporate vehicle regulation is long overdue as this is its first comprehensive update in 30 years.

The Act has 870 Sections which are classified into chapters under part A to G. Part A deals with the composition and administration of the registry which function as a regulator – the Corporate Affairs Commission (CAC). Part B has 29 chapters which stipulates the lifecycle of companies from their incorporation through to liquidation. Part C and D have 11 and 2 chapters, respectively, and set out provisions that govern Limited Liability Partnerships and Limited partnerships. Part E and F reprised sections on the registration and regulation of business names and Incorporated Trustees, with a few changes outlined in Chapters 3 and 7, respectively. Part G introduces the quasi-judicial body. The administrative proceedings committee – in its first chapter and covers general miscellaneous matters in its other chapter.

Thus, the newly enacted CAMA 2020 by the Buhari regime on August 7, 2020 paved the way for doing business with ease. The Act gives a strong legal structure that will help reform burdensome regulations that have for 30 years made it difficult to engage in business ventures. The newly enacted Act will particularly help Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises in Nigeria (MSMEs).<sup>3</sup> The Act introduced electronic registration where you don't have to be physically present to file your incorporation documents. Small businesses can now get their business certificate without the usual unnecessary delays that came with the old Act. The cost of filings was also reduced. In addition, the need for a lawyer to sign the compliance form when submitting the incorporating documents has been dispensed with in the New Act. CAMA 2020 is perhaps the most fundamental statute which affects MSMEs in Nigeria<sup>4</sup>. Besides, it influences the inflow of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) into Nigeria. Thus, the National Assembly saw the gaps in the Act as it relates to businesses. It thus became imperative to build a strong legal framework that will enhance business development and the ease of doing businesses in Nigeria. Consequently, this research study will highlight the major changes that have been made with the new CAMA 2020. Not all the changes will be treated, but rather the ones that a layman doing business can readily identify itself with. It will explore how the provisions of the Act dealt with major deficiencies of the old Act and aligned it with international best practices.

The thrust of this paper are therefore to:

- (i) appraise the impact of the CAMA law 2020 on the Nigerian business community;
- (ii) Assess the new innovations of the CAMA law 2020;
- (iii) Evaluate the legal, regulatory and administrative framework of the CAMA law 2020; and
- (iv) Identify the challenges brought about by the new regime on the Nigerian business community.

1.2 Historical Antecedents of Corporate Law Legislation in Nigeria

Before 1876, there were no local laws governing the operations of companies in Nigeria. The companies in operation were mostly foreign and operated with their foreign status.<sup>5</sup> In 1876, the Supreme Court Ordinance was promulgated for Lagos Colony which was under the British Crown. The Act made the common law, the doctrines of equity and the statutes of general application which were in force in England applicable to Lagos Colony.<sup>4</sup> After the amalgamation of the Northern and Southern Protectorate in 1914, the Supreme Court Ordinance of 1914 came to cover the whole of Nigeria and also with a provision making the common law, the doctrines of equity and the statutes of general application in England, applicable to the whole of Nigeria<sup>6</sup>.

In 1912, the Companies Ordinance was enacted being the first local statute to provide for incorporation of companies by registration.<sup>7</sup> The ordinance later extended to the rest of the country. It became chapter 38 of the Laws of Nigeria, 1948 edition and Chapter 37 of the Laws of Nigeria, 1958 edition. The ordinance was amended in 1941 and 1954<sup>8</sup> and in 1963, was designated Companies Act, continuing in operation till 1968 when a new Companies Act repealed it.<sup>9</sup> The companies Act of 1968 made some novel provisions, however it was criticized that it was a little more than the putting together of some of the sections of the replaced 1963 Act.<sup>9</sup> In 1987, the Nigerian law reform Commission was formed and following the consideration of the consultative Assembly on company law in 1988, the Companies Act of 1968 was repealed by the Companies and Allied Matters Act 1990. The new Act not only made provisions for companies but also for business names and incorporated trustees; thus it was divided into three major parts. The 1990 Act endorsed common law principles and doctrines of equity with necessary amendments where desirable. It also established the Corporate Affairs Commission was to administer the Act.<sup>10</sup>

1.3 The Companies and Allied Matters Act 2020

Since the Companies and Allied Matters (Amendment) Decree of 1991<sup>11</sup> till the year 2020 no other amendment was made to the aged legislation. The 1990 Companies Act became grossly inadequate to regulate the growth of economic activities in Nigeria's fast developing economy. Nigerian Companies have essentially been required to rely on a 30-year-old law to govern the way local businesses operate. This consequently hindered investors from investing in the economy and slowed down the pace and ease of doing business in Nigeria.

On Tuesday 15th May, 2018, the Senate of the Federal Republic of Nigeria passed the Companies and Allied Matters Act, 1990 (Repeal and Re-enactment) Bill 2018.<sup>12</sup> The bill consolidated proposed amendments from two related bills.<sup>13</sup> The House of Representatives on the 4th of March 2020 again passed the bill which was later concurred by the Senate on 10th March 2020.<sup>14</sup> Consequently, on August 7, 2020, President Muhammadu Buhari signed into law the Companies and Allied Matters Act 2020<sup>15</sup>. The new CAMA is Nigeria's most significant business legislation in three decades and it introduced novel provisions will promote ease of doing business in Nigeria. The new law also provides for a robust framework that addressed some of the legal and regulatory bottlenecks which have made doing business in Nigeria difficult particularly for micro, small and medium Enterprises<sup>16</sup>.

1.4 Major Innovations of the 2020 CAMA Act

The following are some of the most significant innovations to the Nigerian corporate practice as introduced by the CAMA 2020.

(a) Inclusive Corporate Affairs Commission Board

The Board of the Commission<sup>17</sup> which is charged with administering the Act now has representative of the Institute of Chartered Secretaries and Administrators of Nigeria and the Nigerian Association of Small and Medium Enterprises<sup>18</sup>. That was not the situation prior to this time. This inclusion will give room to allow inputs from professional company secretaries who deal with CAC regularly, an avenue to make meaningful contributions to the administration of the Act.

(b) Single Member/Shareholder Companies

Section 18(2)<sup>19</sup> makes provision for the establishment of a private company with only one (1) member or stakeholder. This is in contrast with the provisions of erstwhile CAMA, which required a minimum of two (2) persons to form and incorporate a company<sup>20</sup>. This provision will enable sole proprietorships to register as companies and benefit from the limited liability protection that companies enjoy. It is pertinent to state that micro, small and medium enterprises are the power house of the Nigerian economy, collectively employing about 60 million Nigerians, yet only about 14% of them are registered under CAMA.<sup>21</sup> This provision is also significant for multinational companies and other holding companies, who can now be the only shareholder in their Nigerian subsidiaries. Single member companies is consistent with several other jurisdictions such as England, India and Singapore, which provides that a company can be formed by one or more persons<sup>22</sup>.

(c) Right of First Offer and Other Restrictions

Section 22(2) (a) and (b)<sup>23</sup> introduced the statutory right of first offer for private companies. This implies that subject to the provisions of the articles of association, a member of a private company is prohibited from transferring shares in the said company to a non member, without first offering the shares to existing members. In addition, a private company cannot, without the approval of all its shareholders, sell assets having a value of more than 50% of the total assets of the company<sup>24</sup>. Also a shareholder or a group of shareholders acting in concert, cannot agree to sell more than 50% of the shares of the company to a non-shareholder without the non-shareholder consenting to buy the shares of the other existing shareholders on the same terms<sup>25</sup>.

(d) Introduction of Statement of Compliance

Section 40(1)<sup>26</sup> introduced the statement of compliance which can be signed by an applicant or his agent, confirming that the requirements of the law relating to registration have been complied with. Before now, only a legal practitioner was required to sign a statutory declaration of compliance, which forms part of the incorporation documents<sup>27</sup>. The position presently is that anybody not necessarily a legal practitioner can sign the statement of compliance. Thus, the implication is that a legal practitioner is not needed to incorporate a company which was before now exclusively done by them and partly Chartered Accountants and chartered secretaries or firm of any of the above who are accredited with CAC. It is submitted that this provision may tamper with the quality of work done before incorporating a company as well as increase sharp and shady practices with respect to incorporation of companies.

(e) Authorized share capital replaced with minimum share Capital

The capital requirement for companies is referred to as “authorized share capital”. The concept of “authorised share capital” has now been replaced with “minimum share capital”<sup>28</sup>. With minimum share capital, promoter(s) of a company need not pay for shares that are not needed at a specific time. In line with charges made in other jurisdictions such as England, a company is no longer required to have an authorised capital that specifies the limit on the maximum amount of shares a company can allot<sup>29</sup>. The rationale behind this is that the requirement of paying stamp duty and CAC filing fees whenever it increases its authorized share capital notwithstanding that all the shares might not have been allotted, amounts to a front-loading of costs. Presently, the concept of minimum issued capital implies that if a company has met the minimum share capital requirement, it will be required to only pay the stamp duty and CAC filing fees with respect to the minimum issued share capital only<sup>31</sup>. If the minimum issued share capital is increased in future, stamp duty and filing fees will only be paid in respect of the additional shares issued.

The minimum issued share capital requirement was increased from N10,000 (Ten Thousand Naira) to N100,000.00 (Hundred Thousand Naira) for private companies<sup>30</sup> and from N500,000.00 (Five Hundred Thousand Naira) to N2,000,000.00 (Two Million Naira) for Public Companies<sup>31</sup>. In addition to the above, exclusion of the provision requiring subscribers to the Memorandum to subscribe to a minimum of 25% of the authorized share capital in the erstwhile CAMA was made<sup>32</sup>. Henceforth, subscribers to the memorandum of association are not required to subscribe to 25% of now the minimum share capital.

(f) Exemption from the Appointment of Company Secretary

By virtue of Section 330(1)<sup>33</sup>, it is now optional for private companies to appoint a company secretary. The appointment of a company secretary was a mandatory requirement for every company<sup>34</sup>. This exemption of company secretary for small companies will go a long way to help reduce the cost of running a business in Nigeria, as a business owner/shareholder can also carry out the duties of a company secretary. It is pertinent to note that the statutory requirements of class of persons who can be appointed the secretary of a public company still remains<sup>35</sup>.

(g) Register of Secretaries

Section 292(1) of the repealed Act<sup>36</sup> required every company to have a register of secretaries and directors at its registered office. Section 336<sup>39</sup> makes it mandatory for every public company to maintain a register of secretaries and sections 337<sup>37</sup> and 338<sup>38</sup> provides for the required particulars in the register or secretaries. The exclusion of private companies from keeping a register of secretaries will also reduce the operational cost of small businesses.

(h) Disclosure of Significant Control and Beneficial Ownership

Section 119 and 120<sup>39</sup>, provides that persons who hold significant control in any type of company are required to disclose particulars of such control to the relevant companies within seven days of acquiring such significant control. The company must inform the commission within one month of receipt of the information, disclose the information in their annual returns to the commission and update their register of members with the appropriate details. This provision is aimed at increasing transparency and combating of asset shielding. Under the repealed Act,<sup>40</sup> obligation to disclose beneficial interest was limited to where such interest was acquired in a public company. The new CAMA did not distinguish between disclosure required by a public company and a private company<sup>41</sup>.

(i) Merger of Incorporated Trustee

Section 849 of the new Act<sup>42</sup>, provides for merger between two or more associations with similar aims and objects under such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the CAC. There was no provision of this merging of incorporated Trustees with similar objects in the repealed law.

This provision will help harmonize as well as reduce the creation of multiple incorporated trustees with similar objects.

Similarly, Section 831 of the new CAMA provides for the treatment of any two or more associations having the same trustees to be treated as a single association. This is without prejudice to the provisions of Section 849 of CAMA 2020. This provision is expected to facilitate effective operations. This provision will also promote accountability and enforcement of compliance, as well as establish a nexus between associations for the purpose of determining control and ultimate ownership of property<sup>43</sup>.

(j) Common Seal Optional

The procurement of a common seal is no longer a mandatory requirement according to Section 98.<sup>44</sup> Although, the requirement of company seal is no longer mandatory for companies, it would be desirable for companies to have one, as it authenticates documents emanating from the company. However, a company is free to adopt an alternative mode of authorization. In some other jurisdictions, a company seal is optional too. For example, section 9 of the Companies and (Amendment) Act 2015 of India, made common seal optional, it went further to provide an alternative mode of authorization for Companies who do not wish to have a common seal<sup>45</sup>. According to this amendment, if a company does not have a common seal, then the authorization shall be done by: two directors or one director and the company secretary (if the company has appointed a company secretary).<sup>49</sup>

(k) Shares Buyback

Section 184(1) provides for the procedure for the acquisition by a company of its shares and Section 186 outlines the persons from whom a company may buy back its own shares which are:

- (i) The existing shareholders or security holders on a proportionate basis;
- (ii) the existing shareholders in a manner permitted pursuant to a scheme of arrangement sanctioned by the court;
- (iii) the open market and
- (iv) by purchasing the securities issued to employees of the company pursuant to a scheme of stock option or any other similar scheme.

Where a company buys back its shares, payment for the share buyback shall be made from the distributable profits of the company.<sup>46</sup>

Due to the amendment in Section 98 of CAMA<sup>47</sup>, which makes a common seal optional, CAMA, 2020 now provides that a share Certificate may either be:

- (i) issued under the company's seal (where the company has a common seal or
- (ii) signed as a deed by the company<sup>48</sup>.

(m) Authentication Via Electronic Signature

Section 101<sup>49</sup> provides that a document requiring authentication by a company may be signed by a director, Secretary or other authorized officer of the company, and need not be signed as a deed unless otherwise specifically required by CAMA 2020. This same Section went further to provide that electronic signature is deemed to satisfy the requirement under this Section. This is in tandem with modern technological developments, as well as the provisions of the Evidence Act, 2011.

(n) Exemption from Audit Requirement

By Section 402<sup>50</sup>, small companies and companies that have not carried out business since incorporation (other than an insurance company or a bank or any other company as may be prescribed by the CAC) are exempted from requirements of audit as may be prescribed by the law relating to the audit of accounts in respect of a financial year. Before now, every company whether private or public was required under the law to appoint an auditor or auditors at its Annual General meeting to audit the financial statements of the company<sup>51</sup>. This particular provision of exempting small companies and companies that have not transacted business since incorporation (with the exception of those prescribed by CAC) will help small businesses to grow, as well as ease the burden of compliance to many statutory requirements.

(o) Display of Audited Accounts on Websites

Section 374(b)<sup>52</sup> now requires every public company to keep its audited accounts displayed on its website. This provision is in line with the existing requirement of the Nigerian Stock Exchange and the securities and Exchange Commission. This provision also enhances transparency, as well as afford prospective investors the opportunity to make informed decision. There was no such provision in the repealed CAMA.

(p) Introduction of Alternative to Attorney General's Consent

Section 26 (4)<sup>53</sup> maintained that the consent of the Attorney General of the Federation is still a primary pre-requisite for the grant of registration of a Company Limited by guarantee. It is pertinent to note that an alternative to the Attorney General's consent has been introduced. In the event that the AG does not grant authority to the promoters within thirty (30) days (where there are no objections or other cogent reasons for refusal)<sup>54</sup>. The promoters are permitted to place an advert in three (3) national dailies and invite objectives within twenty-eight (28) days. Where there are no objections, the new CAMA empowers the CAC to assent to the application and register the company without the A.G's consent, after advertising the application in three national dailies<sup>55</sup>.

It is important to note that the repealed Act required all Companies Limited by guarantee not to be registered with a share capital<sup>56</sup>. This provision has now been deleted from the new CAMA

2020. It is not clear whether the intention is for companies limited by guarantee is now required to be registered with share capital and the applicable authorized share capital under the new regime.

(q) Introduction of Limited Liability Partnerships

Under the new CAMA 2020, Limited Liability Partnership (LLP) is introduced as a business structure<sup>57</sup>. This was not the case under the repealed law. The novel provision is in line with international best practices and also in line with what is obtainable in other jurisdictions, such as the United Kingdom and the United States of America. It is pertinent to note that it is only Lagos State that has its partnership law in Nigeria. Under the erstwhile Act, partnerships were not considered a body corporate with separate legal entity, and thus the liability of such partnerships were not recognized under then CAMA.

(r) Electronic Filing, Electronic Share Transfer and Electronic Meetings for Private Companies

Section 861<sup>58</sup> provides that certified true copies of electronically filed documents are admissible in evidence, with equal validity with original documents. In addition, Section 176(1) provides that instruments of transfer of shares shall include electronic instruments of transfer. Before now, the old CAMA required the transfer of shares to be made by instrument of transfer (paper/physical document)<sup>59</sup> and meetings of companies were physical meetings. Present day realities have shown that reliance on will be seen as highly redundant in this era of electronic communication.

Given the present-day realities and the emergence of corona virus pandemic across the globe, it has become imperative that both public and private companies should hold their meetings virtually (if it is impracticable to do so physically). This is in line with emergency business and lifestyle adjustments globally necessitated by the coronavirus pandemic<sup>60</sup>. Thus, the new CAMA did not take this into consideration. During the pandemic, the centres for Disease Control and Prevention in different countries prohibited large, in-person gatherings in an effort to prevent the spread of coronavirus<sup>65</sup>.

(s) Enhancement of Minority Shareholder Protection and Engagement

Section 265(6) restricts companies from appointing a director to hold both the office of the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of a private company. The new CAMA, explicitly prohibits both offices stated above to be held by the same person. The separation of these two (2) roles is in accordance with the Nigerian code of Corporate Governance 2018 and International best practices.

(t) Minimum Directors

Section 271(1)<sup>61</sup> exclude small companies from the requirement of having a minimum of two (2) directors. This implies that a small company is permitted to have only one (1) director. This was not the case in the repealed law. Every company was before now required to have at least two directors<sup>62</sup>. Permission granted to small businesses to have only one director is step taken in the right direction as this would reduce running cost for small businesses.

(u) Independent Directors in Public Company

Section 275(1)<sup>68</sup> provides that every public company must now have at least three independent directors. Presently, the SEC code of Corporate Governance<sup>63</sup> and the Nigerian Code of Corporate Governance<sup>64</sup>, provides that companies should have a minimum of one independent director. This provision of CAMA 2020 creates a higher threshold for this requirement and companies will be mandated to meet this higher requirement of three independent directors regardless of the SEC rules and the Nigerian Code of Corporate Governance. There was no provision of appointment of independent directors in public company under the erstwhile CAMA.

1.5 Conclusion

The purpose of this paper was to highlight the major changes made to the New Companies and Allies Matters Act 2020. No doubt the new Act is a better innovation than the previous one. The introduction of Electronic registration is particularly commendable as anyone can now register their business with ease. Furthermore, before now the idea of a sole business owner not having protection under the law no longer exists. Today, the new law which introduced a single member/shareholder will help one-man business to achieve the state of corporate personality. The Act further removed the minimum Authorized share capital for Private and Public companies. Today it termed the issue of capital. Thus issue share capital which was formerly ₦10,000 and ₦500,000 is now increased to ₦100,000 and ₦2,000,000 for private and public companies respectively. In addition, the requirement for a company secretary is no longer mandatory. Of fall the major changes made which are quite welcoming, there are however some changes made which are left to be undesirable. For example, the Act no longer requires the legal practitioner to sign a statement of compliance. The applicant or agent can now sign the compliance form. This is quite unacceptable as such a change may affect the quality of work done. The Act seems to have dispensed with the need for a legal practitioner. It is submitted that Corporate Affairs need to incorporate the expertise of the legal practitioner so as not to project mediocrity as the standard of the day as regards incorporation.

1.6 Recommendations

As was mentioned earlier, the latest Act is highly commendable. Howbeit, there are still some grey areas that need improvements. Thus, this paper suggests some recommendations as enumerated hereunder:

- (a) The period of the appointment of the Administrator expires after one year, except there is an application for extension. This is a short period to revive a dying company. In the former Act, there is no limitation period for receivership. This system of time frame for receivership should also be incorporated into the company administration.

- (b) The requirement that the administrator must give two days' notice before being appointed should be expunged. The receivership procedure in the former Act does not require such notice. Lastly, in order to ensure the quality of the company registered, the government needs to consider restoring the endorsement of the statement of compliance by the legal practitioner.
- (c) There should be a strict and total compliance with the codes of corporate governance in Nigeria. Accordingly, the codes as put in place by the Companies and Allied Matters Act 2020 and other regulatory agencies in Nigeria, as well as the World Bank Corporate Governance Reports and the 1999 Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) principles of corporate governance which was revised in 2004 should not be allowed to be optional to companies but should be strictly enforced in order to achieve its desired goals.
- (d) It is the finding of this study that the administrative proceeding committee under Section 851 of the New CAMA 2020 has been saddled with the responsibility of adjudicating on matters arising in the Act as provided by section 38 of the Companies regulation. Given that the functions of the CAC includes administering and ensuring compliance by companies with the provisions of the CAMA 2020, the registrations of companies and the maintenance of registry, it is inevitable that the CAC will be a party to most of the disputes or grievances that will come before the committee (either as an accuser or a defendant). Another issue the committee may have to contend with, is the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal High Court provided in section 251(1)(e) of the 1999 CFRN as amended 2011 which gives the Federal High Court exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate disputes arising from operations of the CAMA 1990 or any enactment replacing it. Which means that the provision of section 851 of the CAMA 2020 is inconsistent with section 251 of the 1999 CFRN as amended 2011 which the resultant effect will be any disputes adjudicated by the committee will be unconstitutional until provided for in the constitution. It is therefore recommended that section 851 of CAMA 2020 should be amended so as to return the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal High Court.
- (e) Furthermore, there is a dire need to ensure transparency and adequate check on the excesses of the corporate organs. Thus, the provisions of section 87(4) of the CAMA 2020, which excuses the board of directors from obeying the directions or instructions of the members in general meeting where the article does not provide otherwise should be amended.
- (f) Again, the provisions of Section 280 (b) of the CAMA 2020 which limits the disqualification of appointment of directors for a period of ten years who commits any offence involving fraud, to include those found liable under Sections 668 to 670 of the CAMA 2020, which bothers on fraudulent acts of officers of a company detected in the course of liquidation.<sup>65</sup>
- (g) Finally, in order to ensure the quality of the company registered, the government needs to consider restoring the endorsement of the statement of compliance by the legal practitioner.
